UNA is a pilot AI assistant designed to help you quickly and conveniently access information about sustainability. It draws solely on trusted resources from the UN Global Compact and does not have access to all information available on the web. As a result, its responses are general and may not always be accurate, complete, or up to date. The information provided is not a substitute for professional advice, and you should verify any important details independently before acting on them.

As part of our commitment to sustainability, we want you to know that artificial intelligence technologies consume significant energy and water resources. We encourage you to use UNA thoughtfully and only for necessary queries. Responsible use helps minimise the environmental footprint of digital technologies and supports our shared sustainability goals.

We are continuously working to reduce the environmental impact of our services, including improving energy efficiency, selecting more sustainable infrastructure, and investing in renewable solutions.

By using UNA, you acknowledge these limitations and understand that responses are provided "as is," without warranties of any kind. UN Global Compact Network Australia is not liable for any decisions made based on the information provided. For details on how we handle your data, please refer to our Privacy Policy.
